Clouds of sparks were swept to the roofs of the tenements along Eighth Street, opposite the factory causing a wild panic among the Italian dwellers in them. The nearest church was soon filled with scores of women praying frantically to save their homes.

All the fire apparatus of Hoboken was called to the two burning blocks and found itself helpless except to kill off the small fires which started on the tenement roofs and threatened a disastrous conflagration. The Jersey City Fire Department was asked trucks which could be spared to the neighbor city.

So far as the police could learn all the employees in the burned establishment were accounted for except the day watchman of the chocolute factory, Samuel Jones and Miss North Costello, paymaster, who was paying off the girls on the second floor when the fire drove them to the number of ca. ... thes among officers street. TROUBLE.

Many of the strikers have announced that if the company attempts to withhold what is due them the company will have to take the consequences.

Several hundred noticemen under command of Capt. Griffith, and armed with rifles, went into the Constable wall and their revolvers taken from them. As a result of this raid, the strikers are in a sullen mood.

Mayor Garvin expressed the opin ion to-day that the police force, augmented by several hundred citizens would soon have the situation under control.

"We're not taking any chances, however," he declared, "We are still swearing in policemen. They are all prepared to defend themselves in any mergency. If the strikers start any nore rioting they will only get the coret of 1t."
